

Orano USA
1155 F Street, N.W.
Suite 800
Washington, D.C. 20004

Sam Shakir

President and Chief Executive Officer

Sam Shakir is the President and Chief Executive Officer of Orano in the United States. Orano is a $4.5 billion nuclear materials and technology company. The U.S. operation led by Shakir is headquartered in Washington, D.C., and represents 18% of the global revenue or $800 million, with 700 employees in 10 locations around the United States.

Shakir has more than 25 years of experience in the nuclear and renewables energy sectors. He has held several senior leadership roles actively developing businesses, deploying new technologies, setting up partnerships, leading numerous power and fuel cycle projects in the United States, Europe, Asia, and South America, and arranging project financing for deals.

Shakir earned his MBA from the Haas School of Business at U.C. Berkeley and his Bachelor of Engineering from Concordia University in Canada.

www.orano.group/en
@Orano_usa

Orano USA, a subsidiary of the global company Orano, is a leading technology and services provider for decommissioning shutdown nuclear energy facilities, used fuel management, federal site cleanup and closure, and the sale of uranium, conversion, and enrichment services to the U.S. commercial and federal markets. With its parent company Orano, Orano USA has more than 30 years' experience in decontaminating and dismantling nuclear facilities, and more than 60 years' experience securely transporting and storing used nuclear fuel.

Orano, giving nuclear energy its full value.